THE LITTLE RAINBOW WHO FOUND HER COLORS

Created by Hamidreza Rostami

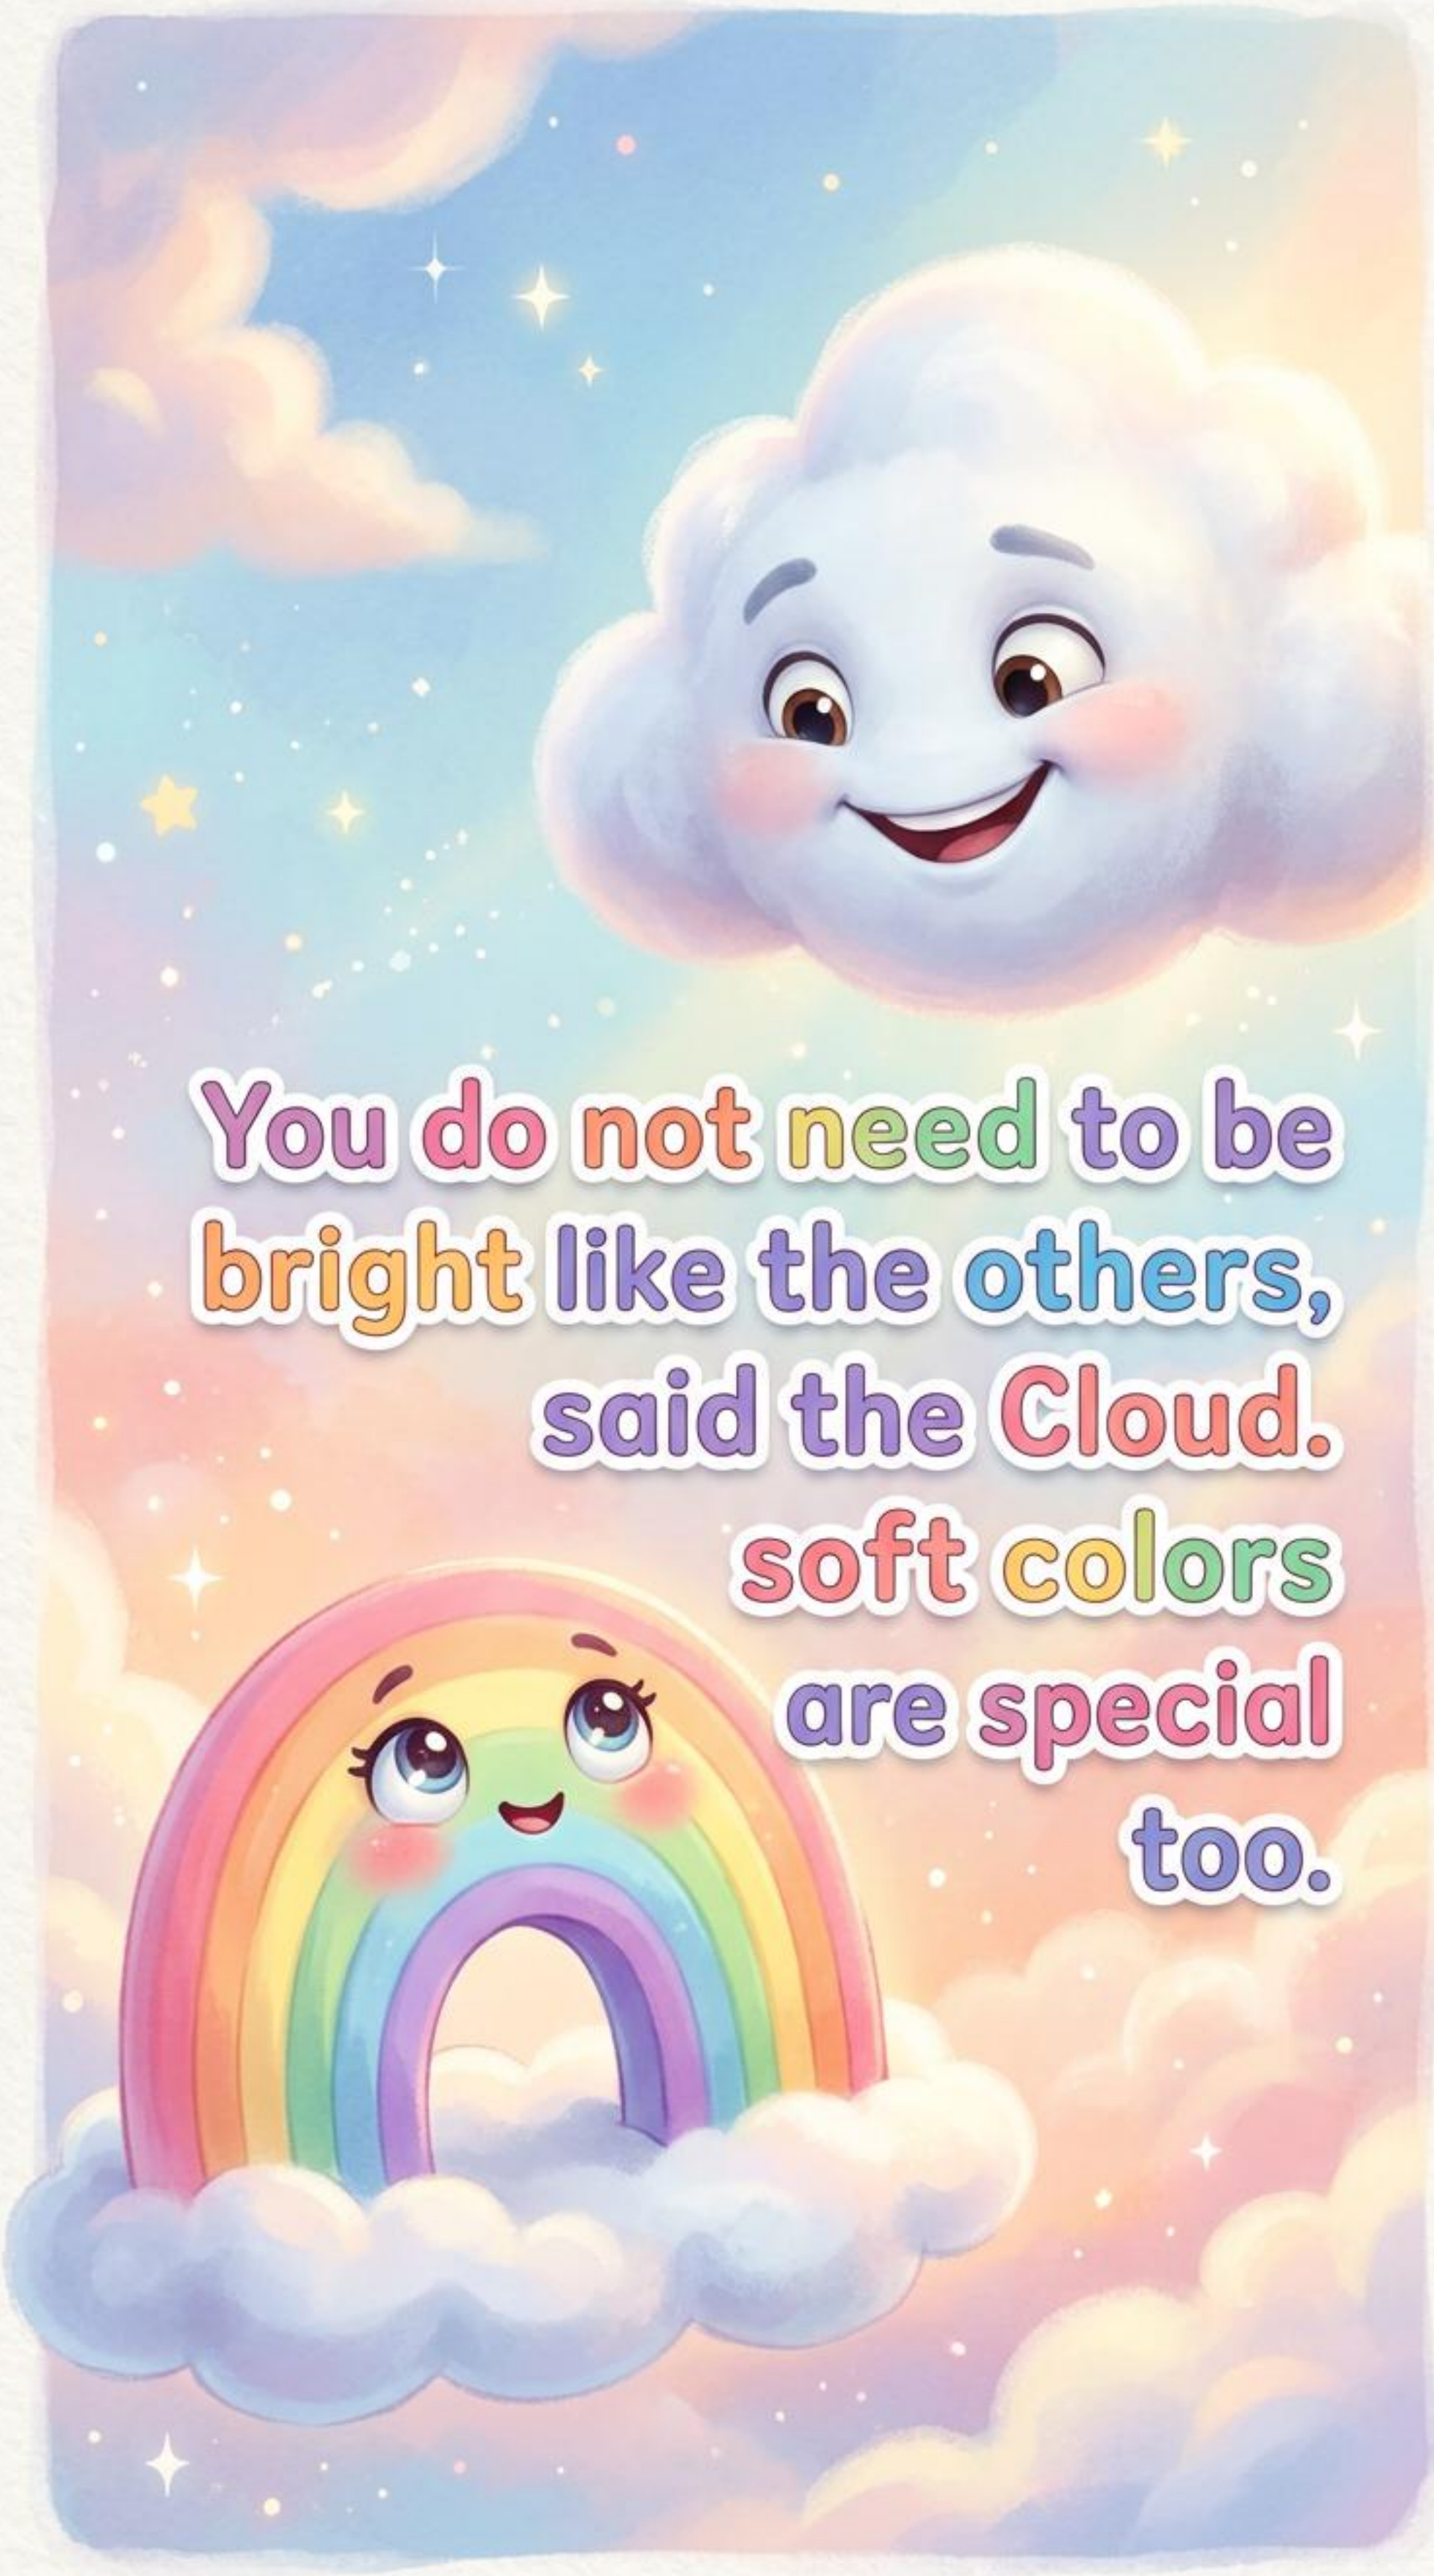

High above
the sleepy hills,
the sky was full of colors
waiting to shine.

Every rainbow loved
to show bright colors.
Every rainbow except
little Iris.

Iris tried and tried.
She stretched.
She arched.
But her colors stayed
soft and pale.

One day, a fluffy cloud
floated by and smiled.
Little Iris, I have a secret.

You do not need to be
bright like the others,
said the Cloud.
soft colors
are special too.

Iris smiled shyly.
But the world needs
bright colors, she said.
Does it need my
gentle glow?

That afternoon,
a little girl looked up
at the sky and whispered,

It is too loud.
I need something
calm.

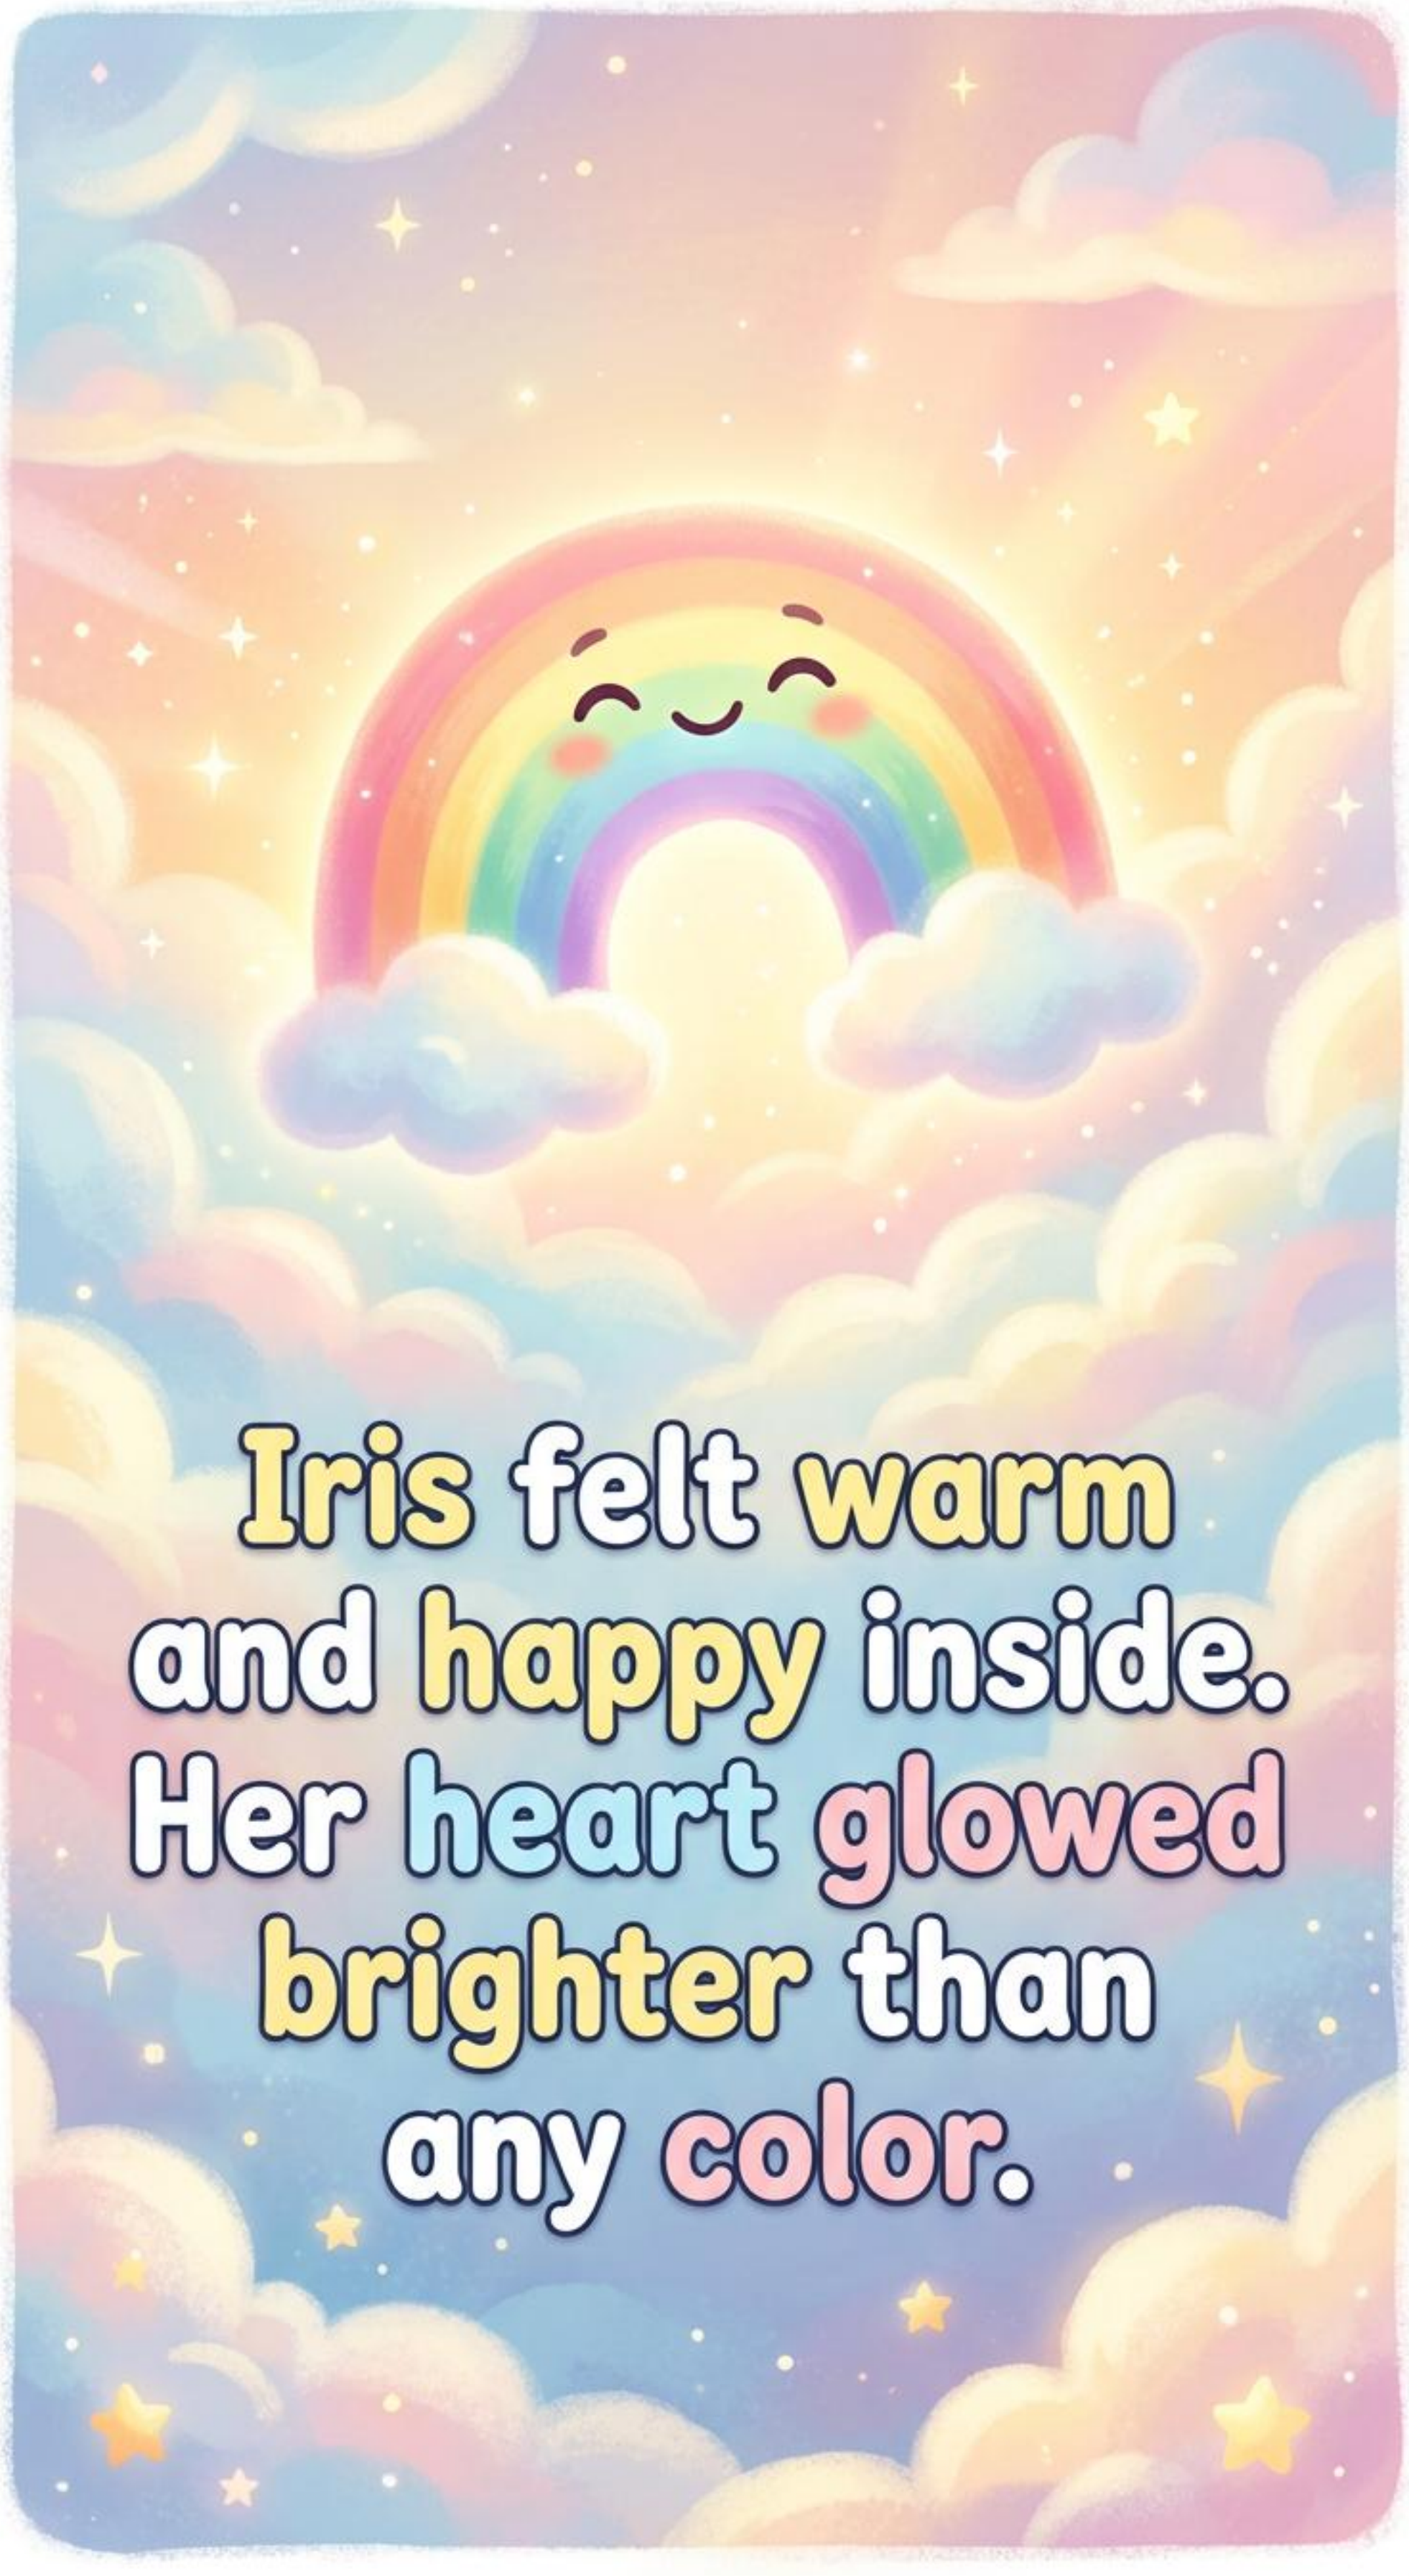

Iris shone her
gentle pastel colors
across the sky.
Soft. Calm.
Just right.

THANK YOU, IRIS,
WHISPERED THE GIRL.
YOUR GENTLE COLORS
HELP ME FEEL CALM.

Iris felt warm
and happy inside.
Her heart glowed
brighter than any color.

Then a big dark cloud drifted by and covered the bright rainbows.

The other rainbows
hid behind the cloud.
But Iris stayed,
shining gently
for everyone below.

Then something magical happened. Iris's gentle colors began to shine, softer and brighter than ever before!

Iris is a little rainbow whose colors are soft and gentle. She longs to be bright like all the others. When she helps a little girl feel calm, Iris discovers a wonderful secret: you are special just as you are, and your gentle light matters to the world.

A gentle bedtime story about self-acceptance, kindness, and shining in your own way.

Created by Hamidreza Rostami