THE LITTLE CLOUD WHO FOUND HER VOICE

Created by Hamidreza Rostami

High above the sleepy hills, the sky was full of soft white clouds.

Every cloud loved to make sounds. Every cloud except little Puff.

CRACKLE!

RUMBLE!

BOOM!

THUNDER!

Puff tried and tried.
She puffed. She rumbled.
But her voice stayed soft and quiet.

One morning, Windy
the gentle breeze
floated by and whispered.
Little Puff,
I have a secret.

“You do not need to be loud like the others, said Windy. Your gentle voice is special too.”

Puff smiled shyly.
But the sky needs
thunder, she said.
Does it need my quiet voice?

That afternoon, a little sparrow landed on a branch and whispered, “I need a friend to listen.”

Puff whispered her gentle voice across the sky.
Soft. Calm.
Just right.

Thank you, Puff,
whispered the sparrow.
Your gentle voice helps me feel heard.

Puff felt warm
and happy inside.
Her heart grew brighter than any thunder.

Then a big storm rolled through the sky and scared the little birds.

The birds needed comfort. Buff stayed gentle and strong, safe near the earth.

Then something magical happened. Puff's gentle voice began to sing, softer and braver than ever before!

The sparrow woke up and smiled. Puff is watching over me, she said.

Puff realized she did not need to be loud like the others.

She just needed to be herself.
Gentle, kind, and speaking in her own special way.

And every day, creatures all over the sky looked up and felt safe under Puff's gentle voice.

Puff was no longer
the little cloud who was afraid to speak.

Puff is a little cloud who is afraid to speak. She longs to be loud like all the other clouds. When she helps a sparrow feel heard, Puff discovers a wonderful secret: your voice matters speak up with kindness and courage.

A gentle bedtime story about self-expression, kindness, and finding your own voice.

Created by Hamidreza Rostami